- 講演の概要
  - The diagnosis of medication-related osteonecrosis of the jaws (ONJ) is essentially based on historical and clinical data. Imaging is an important component of the overall workup to monitor and manage patients at risk for ONJ, or with established ONJ. In this presentation, I will discuss current literature, typical radiological findings and their significance in patient management. I will also highlight areas that are unclear with lack of evidence, where research efforts are required.
